MODEC, Inc. announced today that it has acquired 20% shares of NATCO Japan Co., Ltd. (NATCO Japan). NATCO Japan was established in 1984 as a Japanese subsidiary of National Tank Company (NATCO).

MODEC is a leading FPSO contractor in the world and NATCO is a leading provider of wellhead process equipment, systems and services used in the production of oil and gas. This alliance with NATCO is expected to enhance MODEC’s capability of engineering and design of process systems to be installed on FPSO vessels and to strengthen its competitiveness in the industry.

Pursuant to the terms of the transaction, NATCO has sold 20% interests in NATCO Japan to MODEC, Inc. The resulting ownership of NATCO Japan is now 60% NATCO; 20% Daiichi Jitsugyo Co., Ltd.; 20% MODEC, Inc..
